

THEODORE Roosevelt HONORS LEADERSHIP PROGRAM

DICKINSON STATE UNIVERSITY, DICKINSON, NORTH DAKOTA

"Service is the true test by which a man's worth should be judged."

~ Theodore Roosevelt

A MINOR AND SO MUCH MORE

TR Honors Scholars earn a unique Leadership Studies minor in a student-driven program that emphasizes hands-on service learning opportunities. Students from every major can apply!

Theodore Roosevelt came to Dickinson in his early 20s to take advantage of a rare opportunity. Such energy drives and unites our TR Scholars. Through Leadership Studies and Honors classes, these fine students learn how to become leaders in their chosen fields. They apply what they learn by volunteering for campus and community events--some have become tradition at DSU while others are new--but all are student-generated. Every TR Scholar receives a four-year scholarship upon acceptance into the Program. Classes, internships, and service open doors for TR Scholars, who go on to land excellent jobs as they enter into a large and close-knit network of TR Scholar alums in fields from Art to Zoology!

WHAT OUR TR HONORS SCHOLARS DO

The TRHLP is inspired by the life and legacy of the 26th President of the United States. Theodore Roosevelt believed the best leaders never asked their followers to do something they would not do themselves. Thus, our TR Honors Scholars work together to decide on their volunteer projects, and then roll up their sleeves and get to work!

The TR Honors Scholars are a close-knit community of thought and action leaders on campus. They take classes together to learn about the characteristics of effective leaders, leadership in today's global society, how good leaders effect change, and many other aspects of leadership applicable to every career.

Guest speakers, from politicians to orchestra conductors to entrepreneurs, come to campus to meet with our scholars and share their wisdom.

Plus, we have a lot fun!
